

Nonimmigrant Admissions to the United States: 2015

JOHN TEKE AND WALEED NAVARRO

Nonimmigrants are foreign nationals granted temporary admission to the United States. The major purposes for which nonimmigrant admission is authorized include temporary visits for business or pleasure, academic or vocational study, temporary employment, and to act as a representative of a foreign government or international organization, among others. The United States Department of Homeland Security (DHS) collects information on the characteristics of certain nonimmigrant admissions from DHS Form I-94 arrival records. This DHS Office of Immigration Statistics Annual Flow Report presents information gathered from I-94s on the number and characteristics of nonimmigrant admissions to the United States in 2015.

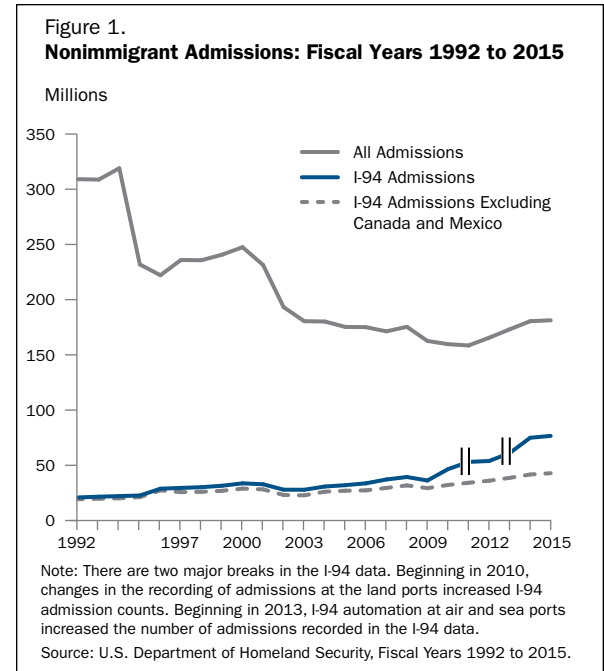

During 2015,¹ DHS granted a total of more than 181 million nonimmigrant admissions to the United States, according to DHS workload estimates (see Figure 1).² These admissions included about 104.4 million visitors, mainly business travelers and tourists from Canada and Mexico, who were exempted from filling out I-94/I-94W forms, as discussed below, and about 76.6 million nonimmigrants who were issued Form I-94/I-94W (collectively referred to as I-94 admissions)—the primary focus of this report.³ About 90 percent of I-94 admissions were temporary visitors for business and pleasure, 4.9 percent were temporary workers and their families, and 2.6 percent were students and their families. The leading countries of citizenship for I-94 admissions were Mexico (27 percent), Canada (18 percent), the United Kingdom (6.5 percent), Japan (5.2 percent), and China (3.8 percent).

DEFINING “NONIMMIGRANT”

Nonimmigrants are foreign nationals admitted temporarily to the United States within classes of admission that are defined in section 101(a)(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA).⁴ Examples of nonimmigrant classes of admission include foreign government officials, ¹ In this report, years refer to fiscal years (October 1 to September 30).

² U.S. Department of Homeland Security, U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP), Operations Management Reporting, Fiscal Year 2015.
³ For this report, I-94 admissions refer to admissions documented with paper or electronic Form I-94/I-94Ws.

temporary visitors for business and pleasure, aliens in transit, treaty traders and investors, academic and vocational students, temporary workers, exchange visitors, athletes and entertainers, victims of certain crimes, and certain family members of U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents (LPRs). Unlike people granted LPR, or “green card” status, who may live in the United States essentially without restrictions, nonimmigrants are authorized to enter the country for specific purposes. Nonimmigrants’ duration of stay and lawful activities, such as employment, travel, and accompaniment by dependents, are prescribed by their class of admission.

Changes to 2013 and 2014 I-94 Admissions Data

Data in this report are based on paper and electronic Forms I-94/I-94W, which U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) uses to record certain nonimmigrant admissions. As described in greater detail below, a number of changes to I-94 procedures in recent years affect I-94 admissions data. Beginning in 2010, DHS completed updates to computer systems at vehicular lanes and pedestrian crossings along the Northern and Southwest borders to record land admissions previously excluded from I-94 data systems. Beginning in April 2013, CBP automated the I-94 process for nonimmigrants admitted at air and sea ports. This transition from paper to electronic I-94 records at air and sea ports also means that CBP automatically generates I-94 records for Canadian business and tourist travelers admitted at air and sea ports even though they generally are not required to fill out I-94 forms. In 2014 CBP made additional changes to its electronic data systems, which have resulted in large increases in the number of I-94 admissions recorded compared to previous years.

Some nonimmigrants enter the United States more than once in a given year, and this report describes the number of nonimmigrant admission events rather than the number of individual nonimmigrants admitted. Admission numbers presented in this report will differ from the number of Department of State nonimmigrant visa issuances, which include all nonimmigrant visas that were issued regardless of whether, or how many times, the foreign national was admitted to the United States.

THE NONIMMIGRANT ADMISSIONS PROCESS

Eligibility

To qualify for admission in a nonimmigrant status, a foreign national generally must establish that the visit will be temporary, agree to depart at the end of the authorized stay, possess a valid passport, maintain a foreign residence (in most cases), be admissible to the United States or have been granted a waiver for any grounds of inadmissibility, and agree to abide by the terms and conditions of admission. Additional requirements differ based on a foreign national's country of citizenship and the conditions of their visit, as discussed below.

Documentary Requirements

Visa Required. Most classes of nonimmigrants are required to obtain a visa to enter the United States. In these cases, foreign nationals must fill out an Online Nonimmigrant Visa Application, Form DS-160, or a Nonimmigrant Visa Application, Form DS-156. In addition, applicants aged 14 to 79 years are generally required to visit a U.S. embassy or consulate and be interviewed by a consular official. Possession of a valid visa does not guarantee admission. A CBP officer determines if the nonimmigrant may enter the United States and the authorized duration of stay.

Mexican Tourist and Business Admissions. Mexican nationals who meet the requirements for a B1/B2 visa (temporary visitor for business or pleasure), have a valid Mexican passport, demonstrate that they will return to Mexico upon completion of their stay, and reside in close proximity to the U.S./Mexico border may be eligible for a Border Crossing Card (BCC) or “laser visa.” The BCC is a machine-readable card that is valid for 10 years and contains fingerprint and other biometric data. Those who reside in the interior areas of Mexico are issued visas affixed to their passports.

To be admitted to the U.S.-Mexico border zone (up to 25 or 75 miles from the border, depending on the entry location) without a Form I-94 as a nonimmigrant visitor, a Mexican national must be in possession of a BCC or a passport and valid visa, or for a Mexican national who is a member of the Texas Band of Kickapoo Indians or Kickapoo Tribe of Oklahoma, a Form I-872 American Indian Card. Generally, Mexican nationals are required to present a BCC or a valid passport with a valid nonimmigrant visa, unless exempt. Mexican nationals with BCCs or Form I-872 are generally authorized to travel within the border zone for up to 30 days at a time without having to obtain a Form I-94. Also, Mexicans entering the United States with a passport and visa may remain in the border zone for up to 72 hours without having to obtain an I-94. However, Mexican nationals traveling beyond these specified zones, who will remain beyond the time periods indicated above, or who seek entry for purposes other than as a temporary visitor for business or pleasure, are required to obtain and complete a Form I-94.

Canadian Tourist and Business Admissions. Canadian short-term business and tourist visitors to the United States are required to possess a valid Canadian passport or other Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative (WHTI)-approved form of identification,⁵ but they generally are not required to obtain a visa or apply for travel authorization through the Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA).

Visa Waiver Program. The Visa Waiver Program (VWP) allows nationals of designated countries to travel to the United States as tourists or business travelers without a visa for periods not to exceed 90 days. Qualified nationals of VWP countries must be admissible to the United States and not have violated the terms of any previous admission under the VWP; possess a valid machine-readable passport; travel on an approved carrier and possess a round trip ticket if arriving by air or sea; obtain travel authorization through ESTA; and waive their right to contest an immigration officer's determination of admissibility and the right to contest removal, other than on the basis of an application for asylum. Nationals of VWP countries must obtain a visa if they are traveling to the United States for a purpose other than tourism or business or if their stay will exceed 90 days.

As of fiscal year 2015, 38 countries participated in the VWP: Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brunei, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Monaco, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, San Marino, Singapore, South Korea, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Taiwan, the United Kingdom, and Chile, whose admission to the VWP was March 31, 2014.

The Guam-Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands Visa Waiver Program (GCVWP) permits nationals of designated countries and geographic areas to be admitted to Guam or the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (CNMI) without a visa. Admissions under the GCVWP may not exceed 45 days in Guam and/or CNMI. In 2014, Australia, Brunei, Hong Kong,⁶ Japan, Malaysia, Nauru, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, and the United Kingdom participated in the GCVWP.⁷

THE I-94 FORM

CBP collects information from most classes of nonimmigrants arriving in the United States on paper and electronic Forms I-94/I-94W. Information collected from these I-94 records includes arrival and departure dates, port of entry, class of admission, country of citizenship, state of destination, age, and gender. Detailed nonimmigrant data in this report were obtained from CBP's TECS database, which compiles and maintains I-94 information.

The I-94 data do not describe all nonimmigrant admissions because certain visitors are not required to fill out I-94 forms. In general, Canadians traveling to the United States on B1 tourist or B2 business visas and Mexicans entering with BCCs who plan to remain in the border region are not required to complete the I-94 Form.⁸ These exceptions are significant because Canadian and Mexican citizens make up the vast majority of all nonimmigrant admissions.

Caution should be exercised when interpreting trends in I-94 admissions because I-94 policies have undergone important changes in recent years. First, between 2005 and March 2010,

DHS completed updates to computer systems at vehicular lanes and pedestrian crossings along the Northern and Southwest borders to record land admissions that were previously excluded from I-94 data systems. Consequently, the numbers of I-94 nonimmigrant admissions in 2010 and 2011 greatly exceeded totals reported in previous years. Second, beginning in April 2013, CBP automated the I-94 process for nonimmigrants admitted at air and sea ports. As part of this automation, CBP began generating electronic I-94s for short-term Canadian tourists and business travelers admitted at air and sea ports who had previously been exempted from the form—a change resulting in additional increases in the I-94 data. (Canadian tourists and business travelers entering at land ports of entry are still excluded from the I-94 data.) Most recently, CBP implemented new electronic data collection systems which resulted in less complete recording of certain data elements including country of residence, gender, and state of destination, but also in more complete recording of country of citizenship. ESTA and I-94 collection methods were digitized through the Automated Passport Control (APC) and Global Entry (GE) systems which do not require fields of these data elements to be collected.

CHARACTERISTICS OF I-94 NONIMMIGRANT ADMISSIONS

Class of Admission

CBP granted 76,638,236 I-94 nonimmigrant admissions in 2015 (see Table 1). The largest category of admission in 2015 was temporary visitors for pleasure, which represented 80 percent of I-94 admissions. This category includes the B2 (temporary visitors for pleasure) and WT (VWP—temporary visitors for pleasure) classes of admission, which accounted for 54 and 24 percent, respectively, of all admissions. Approximately 10 percent of admissions in 2015 were in the temporary visitors for business category of admission. B1 (temporary visitors for business) admissions represented 6.4 percent of all admissions and WB (VWP—temporary visitors for business) accounted for 4.0 percent. About 4.9 percent of all admissions consisted of temporary workers and their families. The leading classes of admission in this category were TN NAFTA professional workers (1.0 percent), L1 intracompany transferees (0.8 percent), and H1B workers in specialty occupations (0.7 percent). F1 academic students represented 2.5 percent of I-94 admissions, nearly all of the admissions in the student category.

Country of Citizenship

The leading countries of citizenship for I-94 nonimmigrant admissions to the United States in 2015 were Mexico (27 percent), Canada (18 percent), the United Kingdom (6.5 percent), Japan (5.2 percent), China (3.8 percent), Brazil (3.3 percent), Germany (3.1 percent), France (2.7 percent), South Korea (2.5 percent), and India (2.5 percent) (see Table 2). I-94 admissions from Canada increased from 13,254,972 in 2014 to 13,408,292 in 2015 following a large increase from 4,445,881 in 2013 as CBP began recording Canadian air and sea admissions of tourists and business travelers in April 2013.

Port of Entry

The largest 20 ports of entry accounted for 65 percent of I-94 nonimmigrant admissions in 2015 (see Table 3). About half of all nonimmigrants were admitted through New York (9.1 percent), Miami (8.0 percent), Los Angeles (6.3 percent), Toronto⁹ (4.8

percent), San Ysidro (3.3 percent), Newark (3.0 percent), San Francisco (2.9 percent), Honolulu (2.9 percent), Chicago (2.7 percent), Houston (2.5 percent), Vancouver (2.3 percent), Otay Mesa (2.2 percent), Atlanta (2.2 percent), Boston (2.2 percent), and Juarez-Lincoln Bridge (2.1 percent). The Boston port of entry reported the highest increase (25 percent) in the number of nonimmigrant admissions in 2015, while Otay Mesa reported the largest decrease (-3.0 percent; see Figure 2).

⁹DHS is the U.S. government agency responsible for securing U.S. borders and facilitating international trade and travel. Through CBP preclearance operations, the same immigration, customs, and agriculture inspections of international air passengers performed on arrival in the United States are completed before departure at foreign airports instead. Currently, pre-clearance operations take place at 15 foreign airports in six different countries (including Canada - Toronto and Vancouver), benefitting air passengers, airports, and air carriers, in the United States and abroad.

State of Destination

The most frequent states of destination for I-94 nonimmigrant admissions in 2015 were California (14 percent), Florida (13 percent), New York (10 percent), and Texas (6.6 percent) (see Table 4). These four states represented the destinations of approximately 44 percent of foreign nationals granted temporary admission to the United States in 2015. The largest increase in the number of nonimmigrant admissions in 2015 was for those destined for Florida (12 percent), whereas the number of nonimmigrant admissions in 2015 bound for Massachusetts decreased by 3.5 percent.

Age and Gender

In 2015, 59 percent of I-94 admissions were individuals aged 25 to 54. Of all I-94 admissions, 46 percent were males, 43 percent were females, and 11 percent were gender-unknown. From 2014 to 2015, the number of nonimmigrant admissions aged 18 to 24 years recorded the highest increase of 3.6 percent, while the age group 35 to 44 years old registered the lowest increase of 1.0 percent (see Table 5).
